Carry It Out

Four hundred of New York's citizens favored with more than an average of this world's goods have received letters from Max C. Baum, a real estate dealer, of 553 West 187th Street, asking them to contribute at least $5,000 to aid him in his plan to end the war and him in his plan to end the war and feet world peace by an Allied victory.

See that Baum expected to get about $500,000,000 from private sources and put it into 50,000 airplanes the like of which has never been seen in this or any other country. Then—secretly, of course—Baum would hand the fliers over to Uncle Sam, and the whole world would be startled and the Huns would be averwhelmingly defeated.
